

Giada Giacomini

Indigenous Peoples and Climate Justice

A Critical Analysis of International
Human Rights Law and Governance

palgrave
macmillan

Contents

1 Introduction	1
Setting Up the Scene: An International Perspective	1
Book Methodology	11
Community Research Methodology	16
Outline of the Book	20
References	24
2 Climate Justice as an Interpretative Approach	27
Introduction	27
The Notion of Climate Justice	28
Indigenous Climate Justice	28
Distribution, Recognition and Participation as a Justice Discourse	36
Capabilities Approach, Human Rights and Justice	44
Decolonial Theories	51
Recognition of Customary Law and Indigenous Knowledge: Same Old (Neo-)Colonial Story?	54
Indigenous Peoples, Climate Change and Colonialism	63
Rethinking Vulnerability	63
Contextualizing Climate Change and Colonialism: The Yanesha Peoples of the Palcazu Valley in Peru	71

Conclusion	89
References	89
3 The International Legal Framework: Human Rights and Climate Change	107
Introduction	107
Human Rights-Based Approaches to Climate Change	108
The Paradox and the Inclusive Promise of Human Rights-Based Approaches to Climate Change	108
Human Rights, Climate Change and International Law	114
Substantive Rights, Procedural and Participatory Rights and Related Challenges	124
Environmental Rights and Climate Change	133
Indivisibility of Human Rights and the Environment: The Right to a Healthy Environment	133
Climate Change and the Right to Life, Food, Health, Water and Other Fundamental Rights: An Issue of Justice	140
Right to Life	142
Right to Food	144
Right to Health	145
Right to Water	146
Other Human Rights at Stake	147
Conclusion	152
References	153
4 Indigenous Peoples in International Law and Governance	159
Introduction	159
The International Protection of Indigenous Peoples' Rights	160
Political Doctrines of Colonization and Decolonization Adopted Within International Law	160
Individual and Collective Rights	172
Indigenous Peoples and International Human Rights Law	178
Human Rights Dimensions of Environmental Law	191
Jurisprudence of International Courts	196
The Participation of Indigenous Peoples in International Fora	205
Participation from Local to Global	205

The UN System: The Establishment of the Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues	212
From Exclusion in Climate Governance to the International Indigenous Peoples Forum on Climate Change	217
Conclusion	227
References	228
5 Participatory Rights, Conservation and Indigenous Customary Law	235
Introduction	235
Right to Consultation and to FPIC	236
Differences Between Consultation and Consent: Two Different Standards in International Law?	236
Consent, Traditional Knowledge and Benefit-Sharing	254
Indigenous Critiques and Guidelines to the Operationalization of FPIC	262
Climate Finance, Participation and Redress: The Independent Redress Mechanism of the Green Climate Fund and the Peruvian Project	266
The Enforcement of Consent Procedures in National Legislation: Example from Peru	279
Biodiversity Conservation, Emissions Reductions and Indigenous Customary Law	295
REDD+, Conservation and Commodification of Forests	295
Indigenous and Community Conserved Areas	301
The Status of Indigenous Customary Law	310
Conclusion	315
References	317
6 Climate Change and Litigation: Human Rights as a Tool for Climate Justice	323
Introduction	323
Climate Litigation and Indigenous Peoples	323
Conceptualizing and Quantifying Climate Litigation	324
Types of Liability and the Potential for a Human Rights-Based Approach in Climate Litigation	332
Indigenous Peoples in Climate Litigation	340

Conclusion	355
References	356
7 Beyond the Human Rights-Based Approach: Rights of Nature and Ecological Integrity	361
Introduction	361
Earth Jurisprudence as a Systemic and Epistemic Alternative in the Climate Change Context	362
Not Only Human Rights: Indigenous Cosmivision and Rights of Nature	367
Critical Aspects of Rights of Nature vis-a-vis Indigenous Anthropomorphism	369
Rights of Nature in Law and Governance	374
Rights of Nature in Global Environmental Litigation	381
The Right of Ecological Integrity: A Way Forward Through a Non-centredness Theory	389
Conclusion	395
References	397
8 Conclusion	403
Achieving Climate Justice Within a World of Coloniality	403
Ways Forward and Future Avenues for Research	408
Index	411
Appendix	413